Clos Cantenac

History

Clos Cantenac is a small but seductive 6 hectares property made up of four main parcels of vines carefully planted on an exceptional “terroir” of deep gravels, sand and clay over broken limestone situated close to the prehistoric “Megalith de Pierrefitte”.

This enchanting, Saint Emilion Grand Cru estate was purchased by Martin Krajewski along with his great friend and wine enthusiast Marcus Le Grice from New Zealand in early 2007 and continues to be developed. The first challenge was of course to take control of the day-to-day management of the vines, then to improve the vineyard architecture, and finally to renovate the ancient 200 year old winery in preparation for our first harvest in late September 2007.

Some ten years later, we still continue to work in the same traditional way and to proudly respect both the history and culture of the region in order to produce our fine wines.

This particularity has given its name to the wine.

With an altitude of 42 meters, Lustrac is located on the highest point of Médoc. Hautes Terres de Fourcas Dupré or “High Ground” is here to remind the vineyard particularity. Lustrac-Médoc is one of the 6 communal appellations of the Médoc area, together with Margaux, Pauillac, Saint Estèphe, Moulis and Saint Julien. Château Laujac

History

The estate has been inhabited since Antiquity. By digging the foundations of the vat-house, some diggers discovered fragments of mosaic, polished axes, flints and potteries. Later on, under the reign of Louis XIV, the d'Aujeard family owned the land of Laujac. Thanks to Colbert, Minister of Louis XIV, their social status moved up from wine trader to nobility. They owned Laujac until the XIX C., when M de Villemot bought it, and had the castle built up. It is the same castle which is represented on the label.

Laujac is a beautiful example of neo-classic architecture inspired by the palladian villas. A few years later, in 1824, M de Villemot sold Laujac to the Cabarrus family. The Cabarrus were traders and shipowners in Bordeaux. They sold Laujac to the Cruse family in 1852. Until that time Laujac remained in the same family.

Domaine de La Begude

History

Vast territory of 500 hectares with 17 hectares of vines, like a balcony over the sea, at the top of the appellation Bandol, brushed by the wind named Mistral. La Begude produces red, rosé and white wines belonging to the Bandol AOC, one of the first appellations in France.

The vines are situated 400 meters above sea level. From this elevation, the view extends to Ciotat bay and the sea beyond. The sea air continuously softens the climate of this terroir, which is often extreme. The soil's poverty and the wind allow us to have wines with no excess of alcohol, nor heaviness.

The particularity of la Bégude is its extraordinary diversity of soils and expositions. This mosaic of vines remind us of a color pallet for an artist. It's surrounded by olive trees and the Mediterranean forest caring heavy scents of garrigue. They serve as a setting, if not a jewel case.
